SSA Consultants Announces Global Partnership and Introduces Online Management Training Tool for Leadership Development

BATON ROUGE, LA. – SSA Consultants announces the launch of a revolutionary management training product in partnership with global personality assessment provider Hogan Assessment Systems that combines components of online training modules with the power of world-renowned, validated assessments for a customized management development platform.

iCapstone, an online leadership development training system designed to help users become more effective managers and thereby improve team performance, was developed through a joint venture between Hogan Assessment Systems and SSA Consultants using the proven custom design and delivery platform capabilities of Portico Learning Solutions and incorporates over 70 years of combined experience by both firms in the arena of leadership development and personality assessment.

The unique leadership development product is differentiated from all other training and learning products on the market today in that it provides the user with a unique perspective and insight into their strengths and weaknesses while identifying opportunities for improvement specific to the user's individual Hogan assessment results.

"iCapstone is truly a revolutionary leadership development tool in the ever-changing world of management development in that it incorporates user-specific, real-time assessment results into coaching and development modules on an e-learning platform," said William Slaughter, Ph.D., President of SSA Consultants. "Our partnership with the leading international authority of personality assessments has allowed us to apply over 40 years of management development and training experience to develop this tool that is uniquely designed to change supervisor behavior in the workplace."

iCapstone takes aim at developing users' leadership and managerial abilities through four content-specific modules: Leadership, Performance Management, Communication, and Effective Teams.

The tool is a time-flexible, cost-effective, convenient, and internet-based product to help provide personalized leadership training to employees around the clock and around the world. iCapstone is beneficial for all levels of the organization – from front-line supervisors to senior level executives.
